Parties and Entertainments—Personal Mention

MY CHILDHOOD HOME.

My dear old southern cottage home.
On Carolina's sacred hills;
I see its eve-rasped spot,
I walk beside its sparkling rills.

There stands the vine-clad poplar old
There waves the stately sycamore,
There, too, the orchard blooming sweet
And garden smiling as of yore.

There lie the old familiar fields,
There flows the pebbled brook;
In eddying pools the minnow darts,
And dragon fly in shaded nook.

The hazel-bordered meadow green
Lies waiting for the reaper's blade;
Near by the pleasant grassy plot,
Where once I played in willow shade

Home of my childhood, so precious,
How pure the joy thy memory yields!
How dear thy sweet smiling landscapes,
And sacred thy bright sunny fields!

Hallowe'en Party.

On Tuesday evening of last week which was Hallowe'en or All Hallow's vigil of the feast of All Saints, guests at The Cedars were most pleasantly and amusingly entertained. Dim traditions from days long before the Christian Era have associated this season with things supernatural—as wizards, spirits, and such like uncanny creatures. In harmony with this idea, the rooms besides attractive decorations of vivid autumn leaves and yellow chrysanthemums had many silhouettes of witches and their "favours at the supper table were tiny Jack-O'-Lanterns and tall witch-caps which being immediately assumed by all proved becoming even to manly brows.

On re-entering the parlors after supper, a huge black cat glared from the wall and might, from bulk, have been the one which swallowed the canary, but was much fiercer, and with flames darting from mouth and eyes, after blindfolded contestants for a prize had pinned on him twenty-five tails at various angles and impossible positions, he was indeed a terrifying sight.

There was then initiation amid trembling apprehensions into a secret Mystic Society whose password is "Ba-a-a." Then came a Tournament where the lance was a pencil, the object aimed at a wedding ring, and good luck for the coming year insured (as well as a prize) to any successful knight or lady. A test of fortune was also made with three bowls with liquid or no contents which classified the marriage, past, present or future, of those who blindfolded tried their luck.

Some very curious and inexplicable essays in hypnotism followed with amazing and entirely successful results. Afterwards came very clever and interesting charades, well acted. A prize was awarded to the nearest guess at the number of nuts in a large glass bowl. Then, the guests selected from a box tiny candles of various colors according to taste and these being lighted, heard read aloud prophetic rhymes fitting each different color.

Meanwhile marshmallows were being roasted, and by the light of this fire only were recited in the dimness weird and thrilling ghost stories such as freeze the blood within the veins. It was now close upon the strike of midnight when all well-conducted ghosts and witches scurry away before the dawn. That no fitting disembodied spirit might mistake the hour, the company then united in such extraordinary imitations of cockcrow as would appall and put to flight the bravest ghost.

So with laughter and thanks to the genial hostess, all dispersed to seek in dreams the magic future foretold them.

Mrs. H. C. Rainey is spending a fortnight with her son in Cincinnati.

Misses Sallie and Annie Patton spent last Monday in Asheville shopping.

Miss Gladys Gover, who have been with friends in Atlanta for two weeks, returned home last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Dunham, of Asheville, were Hendersonville visitors on last Thursday.

Mrs. J. L. Rose left Tuesday for Indianapolis, Ind., for a three weeks' visit to relatives and friends.

Mrs. Clarence Burns of Wadesboro, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. C. Sherrill at Brickton, several days last week.

Miss Annie Peterson, of Alton, Ill., is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. A. Thompson at East Flat Rock. Miss Peterson has been quite ill and will spend some time here in our fine climate recuperating.

Miss Katharine Taylor, of Morristown, Tenn., who has been the guest of Miss Cora Lott for two weeks, left on last Saturday. She was accompanied by Miss Lott and together they went to Charlotte to join a house party at the home of their former school mate, Miss Lucile Johnson.

Complimentary to Mrs. Alexander.

Mrs. Sadler and Mrs. Randolph, of Blue Ridge School, entertained delightfully on last Thursday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. Alexander, the mother of Prof. Alexander, who is spending the winter with him. Mrs. Marsh, the mother of Prof. Marsh, who is visiting him for a short season, and Mrs. Nicholls, the wife of Prof. Nicholls, a new professor at Blue Ridge.

The features of the afternoon were games and contests of various kinds. A lovely salad course was served at the close of the afternoon's entertainment.

The guests, besides the honorees, were: Mrs. W. H. Justus, Mrs. J. M. Rhodes, Mrs. A. E. Sample, Mrs. W. Lott, Mrs. Bessie Egerton, Mrs. T. B. Carson, Mrs. J. S. Brown and her guest, Mrs. Carter, of Charlotte.

Mrs. Lott Entertains U. D. C.

Mrs. Wm. Lott entertained the Daughters of the Confederacy at their monthly meeting on last Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Michael Schenck read a review of the year's work and an outlook into the future work of the state organization written by Mrs. Jackie Daniels Thrash of Tarboro, the newly elected state president.

Mrs. L. E. Fisher, the delegate to the state convention at Gastonia gave a detailed report of the proceedings of the convention and presented a large card bearing interesting facts concerning North Carolina. The work of compiling and the expense of same are the gift to North Carolina Daughters of Miss Georgia Hicks, of Faison, the retiring state historian, who had brought several hundred of these cards to the State convention for distribution among the chapters. The local chapter decided to have this card framed for preservation and to present it to the Hendersonville graded school and this will be done at once.

After the business session of the afternoon the hostess served a delightful ice course and cakes, and a social hour was enjoyed.

HENDERSONVILLE HARDWARE COMPANY IN OWN HOME.

Raymond Edwards, proprietor of the Hendersonville Hardware company, has purchased the rock store building next to H. Mr. Edwards began business for himself about three years ago and has made a successful hardware merchant.

A large advertisement calling attention to a big range demonstration at the Hendersonville Hardware company appears in this issue of the Hustler.

Shoes, Shoes—One big lot Ladies' high grade shoes $2.50 to $5.00 values, choice of the lot $1.00 to $1.50 at Glazener's. 11-9-3tc

DEATH OF ELECTOR MAY COMPLICATE SITUATION.

There appears to be a possibility that, although President Wilson carried Washington, Hughes may get one of the seven electoral votes of the state. The death of A. Stream, a Democratic elector, shortly before election and the substitution of E. M. Connor as elector came so late that in many counties the name of Stream rather than Connor rather than Connor appeared on the ballot. It is said that many voted for Stream and that these votes will be invalid. The difference, according to local Republicans will be sufficient to give one Republican elector a plurality.

TEACHERS MEETING SATURDAY.

The teachers of Henderson county will meet in the auditorium of the graded school here Saturday morning at 11 o'clock for their regular monthly meeting. A full attendance is desired.
